

Abortion rights are labor's FIGHT!

Unionists and multitudes of others are raising their voices to protest the wave of attacks on bodily autonomy following the Supreme Court's destruction of the constitutional right to abortion. The country is being dragged back to the days of pro-segregation "states' rights" laws and bans on contraception and queer identities. "Forward" to the dystopia of a fertilized egg having all the rights of personhood. We reject this future.

My
decision
alone

There is an urgent need to fight back. Our unions must take the lead in this battle both on the job and in the streets. Working people will not be denied the ability to control our own bodies, lives, job options and health care.

Gender gaps in wages, promotions, and education are dramatically widened when parents have to leave the workforce to provide childcare. The many forms of reproductive injustice, including forced sterilization and lack of affordable housing and healthcare, have the most devastating consequences for people who are poor, of color, queer, trans, immigrants or living with disabilities.

The fight for reproductive rights needs the militancy, know-how, experience and vast membership of our unions. Join the intersectional, working-class coalition being built by the National Mobilization for Reproductive Justice and support the campaign for a national emergency labor conference to strategize defense of bodily autonomy for all.

Learn about the National Mobilization at
www.ReproJusticeNow.org
info@reprojusticenow.org

-over for information on the campaign for a labor conference-

Abortion rights are labor's FIGHT!

Unionists and multitudes of others are raising their voices to protest the wave of attacks on bodily autonomy following the Supreme Court's destruction of the constitutional right to abortion. The country is being dragged back to the days of pro-segregation "states' rights" laws and bans on contraception and queer identities. "Forward" to the dystopia of a fertilized egg having all the rights of personhood. We reject this future.

My
decision
alone

There is an urgent need to fight back. Our unions must take the lead in this battle both on the job and in the streets. Working people will not be denied the ability to control our own bodies, lives, job options and health care.

Gender gaps in wages, promotions, and education are dramatically widened when parents have to leave the workforce to provide childcare. The many forms of reproductive injustice, including forced sterilization and lack of affordable housing and healthcare, have the most devastating consequences for people who are poor, of color, queer, trans, immigrants or living with disabilities.

The fight for reproductive rights needs the militancy, know-how, experience and vast membership of our unions. Join the intersectional, working-class coalition being built by the National Mobilization for Reproductive Justice and support the campaign for a national emergency labor conference to strategize defense of bodily autonomy for all.

Learn about the National Mobilization at
www.ReproJusticeNow.org
info@reprojusticenow.org

-over for information on the campaign for a labor conference-

Organized labor can strengthen the fight for reproductive justice!

An emergency national labor conference to build a coordinated strategy to defend reproductive justice would set in motion one of the most dynamic and powerful sectors of society. The National Mobilization for Reproductive Justice and its Labor Working Group ask unions, labor leaders and rank-and-file unionists to sign an open letter urging AFL-CIO President Liz Shuler to initiate such a conference in order to fight for their members and all workers.

Spread the word and ask your union local and officers to sign.

Open Letter to Elizabeth Shuler, President AFL-CIO

We, the undersigned unions, labor leaders and activists, urge the AFL-CIO to call an emergency labor conference in support of reproductive justice. Nationally, reproductive rights are in a desperate condition. It is imperative that we never return to the days of back-alley abortions, and organized labor has a unique and critical role to play in preventing this....

The inability to control whether or not to bear children impacts all working people. The same forces attacking reproductive rights are also seeking to destroy our unions....

A national labor conference can help unite us in the struggle for social and economic justice. It can bring together union activists in a concerted effort to discuss and plan for action to fight for reproductive justice and bodily autonomy....

Labor is in the most powerful position to mobilize thousands of workers in defense of this fundamental right....

Full text of the letter and form for signing are at tinyurl.com/letter2aflcio or QR code below.

Stay updated on actions of the National Mobilization for Reproductive Justice and its Labor Working Group.
Email info@reprojusticenow.org

Labor donated 6/2023

Organized labor can strengthen the fight for reproductive justice!

An emergency national labor conference to build a coordinated strategy to defend reproductive justice would set in motion one of the most dynamic and powerful sectors of society. The National Mobilization for Reproductive Justice and its Labor Working Group ask unions, labor leaders and rank-and-file unionists to sign an open letter urging AFL-CIO President Liz Shuler to initiate such a conference in order to fight for their members and all workers.

Spread the word and ask your union local and officers to sign.

Open Letter to Elizabeth Shuler, President AFL-CIO

We, the undersigned unions, labor leaders and activists, urge the AFL-CIO to call an emergency labor conference in support of reproductive justice. Nationally, reproductive rights are in a desperate condition. It is imperative that we never return to the days of back-alley abortions, and organized labor has a unique and critical role to play in preventing this....

The inability to control whether or not to bear children impacts all working people. The same forces attacking reproductive rights are also seeking to destroy our unions....

A national labor conference can help unite us in the struggle for social and economic justice. It can bring together union activists in a concerted effort to discuss and plan for action to fight for reproductive justice and bodily autonomy....

Labor is in the most powerful position to mobilize thousands of workers in defense of this fundamental right....

Full text of the letter and form for signing are at tinyurl.com/letter2aflcio or QR code below.

Stay updated on actions of the National Mobilization for Reproductive Justice and its Labor Working Group.
Email info@reprojusticenow.org

Labor donated 6/2023